

FSRC Food Safety Information Infrastructure Project: Phase 1

FSII Project Advisory Group

The PAG is a panel of key experts in food safety data, research, and policy as well as stakeholder representatives from major constituencies. The PAG currently includes representatives of key federal agencies, local and state governments, a wide range of private firms and trade associations, consumer advocacy groups, academic research institutions, and international bodies. The PAG will provide high level guidance to the overall agenda of the project, and provide input into research, particularly with respect to the identification of key issues, obstacles, and opportunities to improve food safety data collection, access, and sharing.
